

THE FLOAT TANK CURE

To the right you'll see the costs of owning a float tank in your home. It's broken out into two years.

Below you'll see a graph that will help you determine what you'll spend each year to float.

FIRST STEP:

On the left of the column choose how many times a month you would like to float.

SECOND STEP:

Choose the amount on the bottom of what you will pay per hour at your local float center.

PRICE PER FLOAT

Where the two points meet is what you'll spend annually to float in a float center. If your annual spend is in the white area it will be cheaper for your to float at your local center. If your spend falls in the purple it will take two years before you are saving money by floating at home, and if your spend is in the blue you will save money your first year by floating at home.

Remember: Maintaining a float tank in your home takes time which is valuable so please add that to your annual cost. Also floating in a center is usually a nice spa like experience, so if you love the experience calculate what that is worth to you.

Floating at home is a commitment, but because it is available anytime for as long as you want many people feel it is more than worth it.
